LIBERTERREAN

#203 January 25, 1984

LIBERTERREAN DEADLINE IS: Monday, February 13, 1984

Quotes from the Libelterrean:

"We are all here for a spell, get all the good laughs you can."

-- W. Rogers
 [with thanks to Bob O'Donnell]

1982 K PRESS:

Two centers changed hands in 1912, thus it's only been 2 years that no centers have changed hands. I request the game be reopened or at least put up to a vote of the players. Since the A-G-F draw has failed on numerous occasions, I feel this will fail and the game continue.

-- C.J. Cottle

[The swing vote is yours, Kevin Tighe, what do you say?

-- Jim]

PBEM DIPLOMACY:

I am moderating games of PBEM Diplomacy for users of the ACE BBS. LIB subscribers will pay no more for a PBEM game than for a PBM game in the LIB, except for your long-distance phone charges. The BBS number is: (503) 343-4352.

Since I've taken the LIB BBS off-line, you may also leave messages for me on that BBS. I check it periodically.

LIBOURSE:

Players in the Libourse trade in the currencies of the Top Board Game, 1983 AG. You may join the game at any time by submitting the $3 game fee together with your request for assignment and a name for your country (only Top Board players may use the name of their position in the Diplomacy game).

Your country will have characteristics in the following categories: population, treasury, agriculture, military, industry, mineral resources, communications, transportation and utilities. You will receive approximately $7,000 in currency of the surviving Diplomacy positions in the Top Board game. You must improve your country in all categories to do well. And you may attack one other Libourse country each turn. Random events may help or hinder your progress.

Libourse Press:

Latvia: Please buy and sell lots of money -- get more variety. Hint: There is a direct relationship between the $ change in price and the total $ amount traded. (NOT shares: 10,000 at $1.35 is more than 90,000 at $0.01) so, probably buy anything under $0.10, and sell over $1.00, and go with the flow for in between.

TURKEY: ROBERT WHITING, 651 Airport Rd. #3,
 MARION, NC 28752

You now have until the deadline for LIB #205 to conduct your initial diplomacy. If you have not yet paid your $3 game fee, now is the time to do it. I show a record of the game fee paid if $3 follows your name. Correct me if I'm wrong. Thanks to Bob O'Donnell for donating $1.00 to the BNC.

200/10th Anniversary Submissions:

This is the last issue in our four issue celebration of 10 years of the LIB. Instead of only printing one big issue, we've had four slightly larger issues. Tom Graessle receives a 10-issue sub for his highest rated submission. The 1890's graphics are rated second, gaining Jack Powers a 5-issue sub. Thankyou all for making these anniversary issues better.

Jim--

200 issues is quite an accomplishment, congratulations. Did you do up a big special issue? Do you still get anything from the New Indicator Collective in La Joila? I seem to remember something from our local leftists in a very old LIB (140's or so). Remember them at all or am I wrong

Best, Keith Sherwood

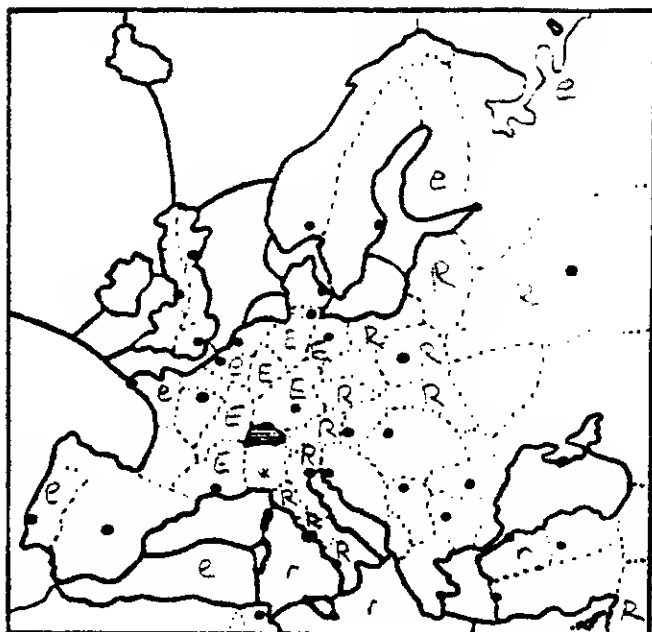

[No, you're not wrong. I do have some anarchist friends in that collective, and I hear from them from time to time]

Dear Jim,

Great milestone! LIB & Christmas & 1984!! Onward!

No one but me was willing to win and a two-way draw was obvious. Why play it out to 17-17? What does it possibly gain? It's been obvious for 3-4 game years you could do it, so why play it out?

THEME 1984:

Dear Jim,

My LIB came to me all ripped up by USPS. Can you send me another issue #202 for my collection? The whole lower left corner was gone. My games I could read, though.

I think I know why my LIB got chopped! "What is Gov't.... is a usurper and a tyrant." (Pissed someone off!)

Best, Dave Ditter

1984 & BIG BROTHER

I guess in the end you end up being a mean son of a bitch, just on principle. Less than 15% of the population is needed for a 50-50 chance at over-throwing any gov't. If they're armed and willing to die and know how to shoot! This is all that was needed by our forefathers in the original 1776 Revolution. If successful, we could rule with anarchy to start, and work our way back up to another revolution 200 years or so later.

I read "1984" 10 or 15 years ago. I plan to reread it. Parts of Big Brother (as Jim said) are definitely here. If I stay armed and indifferent to all the hype, my time may come, along with others in overthrowing a gov't. It is not yet my time, and I've not met the others. Besides things are still tolerable.

Right, Big Brother?!

Dear Jim:

I'm glad you liked Scott Marley's poem well enough to reprint it. He writes good poetry and we've had quite a few of his works in DIPLOMACY WORLD. I am disappointed, though, that you did not give my publication credit for the poem. Aside from any copyright questions involved, it is only common courtesy to give credit both to the author (which you did) and to the original publisher (which you did not). I hope you will correct this oversight next issue.

R)F: Maybe you need to practice writing -- how are things?

R)E: Sorry if I raised any false hopes -- if KK is in G you'll probably die.

I apologize for excluding the publication credit. I was ignorant of the source, and the person submitting the poem to me did not inform me. Thanks for putting us straight.

Ah the inevitable "1984" questions. Most people really overlook the fact that the book is an allegory, with Smith and O'Brien as archetypes as servants of the human spirit and the statist elite, respectively. There are many literary works of the same sort. Smith loses his struggle, but that is not the important fact; the importance is that he waged the struggle at all.

The problem with "1984" is we really never see O'Brien's opposite number. O'Brien symbolizes the insistence that the State is a mechanism for imposing one's will on others. The real opposite to O'Brien is one who insists that his own individual rights are paramount, as against those of others. These philosophies ultimately lead in similar directions. But Winston Smith stands between them, symbolizing the realization that the state is a mechanism for promoting social interresponsibilities (that is, we DO have obligations to others and that the most nearly HUMAN condition is one in which rights and obligations are in balance and harmony. The statists offer one inhuman condition; the anarchists, another.

Insofar as Orwell's novel is concerned, we have to remember two salient points. The first is that its essential precondition was a great and fundamental change which had overtaken the entire world, a change which did not in fact take place.

Winston Smith has vague memories of it. Other indications of what it was may be found in the memoirs of Menshans S. Bloggs, reported by Bertrand Russell in "Nightmares of Eminent Persons." This would then have been a war in which the USSR succeeded in conquering the world without resort to nuclear weapons. However, the resulting squabbles between the various local Marxist governments resulted in the formation of a trio of gigantic superstates. Even so, Oceania, for instance, would have many regional variations. Bradbury (e.g.) in "Fahrenheit 451" and other stories shows an America in the 1980s and 90s which is markedly different (but also remarkably similar to) from Airstrip One.

The problem with the superstates of 1984 is that their years were numbered. They could not and did not last. Historians of the 21st Century record a situation far closer to our own time, although frequently with authoritarian overtones. See, for instance, Frankau, "Unborn Tomorrow"; Karp, "One"; MacGregor, "From A Christian Ghetto"; Vonuegt, "Player Piano"; and others. This era, the Second Industrial Revolution, would itself come to an end, almost certainly in a nuclear holocaust (see, e.g., Huxley, "Ape and Essence" and Graves, "Watch the Northwind Rise"). In such future states as New Crete, the New Christian Empire, and the Second Inca Empire, the struggle between the Smiths and O'Briens, the Christs and Inquisitors, must inevitably continue. But we must always keep in mind that no historical situation can last forever. Winston Smith was a faithful servant of a state which seemed to have won an ultimate and permanent victory. And the fact that he challenged that state, however unsuccessfully, demonstrates the inherent weakness of such structures in which they must ultimately find their own demise, just as Oceania had done by the early years of the 21st Century. The only question is whether the O'Briens, the controllers, can ever win a permanent victory. Insofar as I can tell, even as late as the 100,000 Century (see Asimov, "Foundation"), that issue will yet have remained unresolved.

Best,
Rod Walker

[I don't think anyone you ask will say that human rights and obligations should not be in balance and harmony. The statistis assert a government is needed to maintain that balance and harmony. Anarchist assert a government functions mainly to destroy that balance and harmony.

BERLIN>SWEDEN (via GT&T): "Schultz" "Yes, Kahn" "Be firm

I want world peace and I'm willing to enforce it." "Enforce it?" "Get the peanut butter out of your ears. Enforce it!
Offer them a place in the world. They are men of reason.
They will understand." "But what if they are men of principles." "We respect and understand men who die for their beliefs. If they wish, we will honor them with annihilation, but remind them of the quote from the old prophet Powersmiah."
"What's that, Kahn?" "In Diplomacy, alliances are not usually written in blood -- rather with blood!" Click. Bzzzz. Click.

STOCKHOLM: Minister Schnitz today deplored the "artificial barrier" between Eastern and Western Europe and declared that "[Germany] does not recognize the legitimacy of the artificially imposed division and its inevitable source of instability and tension." While sipping his Coca-Cola, he deplored restrictions on the free movement of German peoples, ideas, trade, and armies in Eastern Europe.

STOCKHOLM (again): Russian Foreign Minister Pauldrei
Gardnyko denounced Kaiser Kahn's end to the Great No Clear
War. German officials report that in a meeting with Schnitz, both men smiled, shook, closed the open window, and shared a warm Dr. Pepper. However, in his address, Gardnyko accused Germany of exporting "militarism, emuity, and war hysteria" while drawing up "maniacal plans" for "No Clear War ... Sowing death and destruction... hurling gangs of mercenaries... carrying out piratical acts of terrorism... and substituting the Rule of Club for Diplomacy!" Schnitz, seen later drinking a glass of Pepsi Free, responded that Gardnyko's literary abuse appeared to dash hopes of German officials that "the Stockholm conference will help thaw the increasingly icy relationships between Berlin and Moscow -- I mean Sevastopol
-- correction, Ankara." It has been suggested by some diplomats drinking Lime Kool-Aid that "No thaw is possible while Kahn remains in office."
